By Patrick L. Smith International Herald Tribune - and that is not far off - there won't be any arguing how essential they are to maintaining the U.S. trade account in balance." TOKYO - One year after a baltooning U.S. trade deficit helped force a world financial crisis, the newly industrialized countries of

The pattern that is emerging, economists say, is one of "triangn-lar trade," in which the United States is dramatically increasing its exports to the four nations, while Japanese imports from them are increasing at a similarly high rate. All four of the little dragons, as they are commonly known, are in-creasing their imports from the United States at annual rates ranging from 41 percent in Singapore to 54 percent in South Korea. Their exports to Japan are increasing at rates close to 50 percent.

Until recently, the value of U.S. exports to each of the NIC's was small enough to be ignored: Even after a 39 percent increase last year, for instance, U.S. exports to Hong Kong were $4.1 billion. In 1987, exports to Singapore stood at $4.8 hillion.

This year, however, the picture is starting to change. U.S. exports to Hong Kong are expected to reach almost $5 billion. Exports to Singapore will top $7 billion, and export to South Korea will approach $9 billion. As a result, the U.S. trade deficit with the NIC's is expected to drop almost 20 percent this year, to about $30 billion. Trade analysis and economists in the region suggest that, in effect, U.S. manufacturers are exporting to Japan through the other four nations, since they are proving more responsive than Japan to ad-justments in exchange rates and fluctuating growth patterns.

The increased importance of the four dragons in maintaining global economic stability was first noted officially at the summit of the major industrialized nations held in Toronto in June. Apart from purely economic factors, the emerging trade pattern reflects efforts begun last year by South Korea and Taiwan to avoid the trade friction that has long plagned Japan. They have acted to stimulate domestic consumption earlier in their own development than Japan did. The imbalances between Japan See TRADE, Page 17

In the summer of that year, oil

sale of its remaining stake in the company flopped in a public offering soon after the October stock market collapse.

Without the intervention by Kuwait at that time, the British gov-ernment's £7.2 billion issue would have fallen flat.

Kuwait has insisted all along that its investment in BP is purely passive, contending that it does not aim to influence corporate policy. After the government probe of its BP holding began, it offered to restrict its voting rights to 14.9 per-cent and not to raise its stake beyond 21.6 percent, but those pledges were rejected by Trade Secretary Lord Young of Britain.

Details of a report by Britain's Mergers and Monopolies Commission, upon which the trade department based its decision, were released Tuesday. The report said Kuwait could seek to curtail BP's exploration and development spending. That was one of the concerns voiced by BP in recent months as it lobbied the government to reduce Kuwaii's stake. The report also suggested that a future Kuwaiti government might be less friendly toward Britain than the

"We expect Kuwait in the long term to exercise influence over these policies and to restrict BP from acting independently and competitively," the report said.

Under the ruling Tuesday, Britain will seek to limit Kuwait's voting rights to 9.9 percent of BP's shares until the divestment is completed.

BP, which warmly welcomed the government decision Tuesday, said several times in recent months that it would like individual stakes in the company limited to 10 percent each.

Among BP's chief concerns about the large stake held by Kuwait is the possibility that it would convey an impression that the giant energy group is controlled by a leading oil producer. BP also feared that Kuwait Petroleum Corp., the Gulf state's big exploring and refining group, might try to pressure BP mto refining and marketing joint-ventures in Europe as part of its drive to gain increase market strare in "downstream" oil operanons.

We do not have a name for the other side," he said with a bint of wry humor about this region's taboos and inexplicabilities. "If they are a country or a people, we don't know it."

Even without the field glasses, from this place where the destinies of Jew and Arab collide, a sign is visible just beyond the last United Na-tions checkpoint: "Welcome to Israel." This is a broken city, on the border between Syria and the Israeli-occupied part of the Golan Heights. Depending on the perspective, the Israeli billboard is either a statement of fact, since Israel annexed parts of the heights in 1981, or a denial of history, because Syria wants it back. Either way, Quneitra stands out. For Syria it is a symbol of relentless Israeli expansion and of an affront that must one day be righted.

"The main point for the Syriams," a West European diplomat in Damascus said, "is that they want the Golan back. So, they'll play very tough in any Middle East negotiations. And as long as the Golan is occupied, it guarantees the Syrians a role in the whole issue." Syria lost much of the strategic heights to Israel in the wars of 1967 and 1973, and Quneitra, only 40 miles (64 kilometers) from Damascus, remained under Israeli occupation until 1974, when a disengagement agreement brokered by the United States handed two-thirds of it back to Syria.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Union of Filmmakers of the Soviet Union said Tnesday that it had asked the government to review the legality of the 1974 deportation of Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel prize-winning author

Mr. Solzhenitsyn was deported and stripped of his citizenship after publication in the West of his three-volume study of the Soviet system of political prisons, "Gulag Archipelago." The union's request for reconsid-eration of Mr. Solzhenitsyn's erile is based strictly on legal grounds, said

Arkadi Vaksberg, a prominent lawyer and writer. He was exiled "contrary to his will" and "without giving him the opportunity to defend himself," said Mr. Vaksberg. The filtumakers' union is seeking a response from the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet by Mr. Solzhenitsyn's 70th birthday, Dec. 11.

Albania Tours Offered by U.K. Firm

LONDON (AP) — A London travel agency announced Tuesday it will run the first regular charter flights from Britain to Albania. Voyages Jules Verne, which specializes in exotic vacations, said it would begin twice weekly flights on Friday to Tirana, the capital. The Balkan country, among the most politically isolated in the world, has opened up slightly since the death in 1985 Enver Hoxha, founder of its Communist system.

Communist system. The agency is offering a three-night Albanian weekend, including airfare, hotels and meals for £195 ($330) and a full week from £259. Visas require a one-month wait. Passengers will he able to fly Mondays or Fridays with British Island Airways, a local charter line. About 500,000 people die on the world's highways each year and by the turn of the century, a million lives will be lost annually, according to a University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Injuries requiring hospital-increase to 30 million, the report said. (UP1)

Brazil says it will start checking domestic airline passengers for weap-ons, following a hijacking last week in which a co-pilot was slain. Officials said passengers would he screened by metal detectors and baggage would be x-rayed or inspected by hand. (Reuters)

Dukakis Calls Bush a Failed Official

j. EVANSTON, Illinois (AP) — Governor Michael S. Dukakis said staesday that Vice President George Bush had failed every assignment in office and that American business had suffered as a result. "We cannot build a strong and vibrant economic future for America on a mountain of debt, and the American business community knows that," Mr. Dukakis, the Democratic nominee for president, said in a speech at Northwestern University.

Mr. Dukakis said Mr. Bush had failed his assignments on promoting U.S. sales in Japan, reforming regulated sectors of the economy, blocking the entry of drugs to the United States, carbing international terrorism and reforming the nation's banking system.

"Mr. Bush was given five important missions by this administration and he failed every one," Mr. Dukakis said.

Democrats Aim for War-Chest Parity

BOSTON (Renters) - For the first time since 1974, when Congress imposed spending ceilings for presidential elections, the Democratic Party is mounting a senous challenge to the Republican fundraising dynasty.

Robert Farmer, the chief fundraiser for Governor Michael S. Dukakis, says he aims to raise $50 million for the Democrats, and the usually prosperous Republicans have vowed to match their rivals dollar for dollar,

"We are making history - this is the first time we've even come close to the Republicans," Kristen Demong, the Democrats' chief of financial operations said this week,

Republicans Are Fading in Senate Races

By David E. Rosenbaum New York Times Service WASHINGTON - As the election campaigns across the United States this fall have heated up, Republican chances of regaining control of the Senate seem to have become more remote. Several Democratic senators who seemed vulnerable earlier in the year have solidified their positions, and at this stage of the campaign all 15 Democratic incumbents who are running for re-election seem to be ahead, most of them by solid margins.

Meanwhile, 2 Republican senators, Chic Hecht of Nevada and David K. Kames of Nebraska, are believed to be trailing their Democratic challengers, and several of the 10 other Republicans up for reelection are in uncomfortably close TRCCS.

These assessments are based on interviews with politicians, politi-cal strategists and independent analysts here and in the various states. The consensus is that the Democrats, who now hold a seat advantage of 54 to 46, are more likely to gain seats in November than to lose

However, Senate races are difficult to handicap with confidence. Few analysis, for instance, predicted the 12-seat Republican gain in 1980 or forecast that the Democrats would pick up 8 seats in 1986. With more than five weeks to go before Election Day, races that now seem one-sided could tighten up, and one candidate or another could pull away in contests that now appear to be close.

"It's a long time out yet, and the issues are just now being joined," said Senator Rudy Boschwitz of

Minnesota, chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee

Nonetheless, the long odds the Republicans face can be seen by analyzing the 33 Senate races state by state

Thirty-six Democratic senators and 31 Republicans are not up for election this year. Eighteen seats held by Democrats are being contested, as are 15 held by Republi-

Bill Clements will appoint a Re-publican, which will give Republicans an additional scat. Democratic and Republican strategists agree that 10 Democratic senators and 4 Republicans are not threatened at all.

The Democrats are Mr. Bentsen, who is running again for the Senate as well as for vice president, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Spark M. Matsunaga of Hawaii, George J. Mitchell of Maine, Daniel Palrick Moynihan of New York, Donald W. Riegle Jr. of Michigan, Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland and Jim Sasser of Tennessee.

The Republicans are John (Danforth of Missouri, Orrin G. Hatch of Utah, John Heinz of Pennsylvania and Richard G. Logar of Indiana.

Here, then, is what the Republicans must do to win a majority; Hold the seats in Nebraska

For Republicans to win back the and Nevada, where the Republican control of the Senate they lost in senators appear to be behind their · Hold seats in California, Con-necticul, Delaware, Minnesota, Rhode Island and Wyoming, where Democratic challengers are within striking distance of Republican incumbents. Democrats believe they have at least an even chance to win in Minnesota, and the Republicans' position in California and Rhode Island is only slightly less

• Win the five seats other than Virginia where no incumbent is running. In Vermont, Rep. James M. Jeffords, a Republican, is said to be comfortably ahead. The contests in the other four states ---Florida, Mississippi, Washington and Wisconsin — are toss-ups at this stage, with the Republicans seemingly slightly stronger in Flor-ida than in the other three.

· Win upset victories over Democratic senators in at least two of the following states: Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota and Ohio. Earlier in the year, all these seats seemed ripe for Republicans, but the challengers have not fared as well as party leaders hoped. Tom Mason, communications director for the National Republican Senatorial Committee, framed the contests slightly differently. He maintained that to win control of the Senate his party would need to win three of the five states be calls the "M and N states": Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada and North Dakota. He acknowledged that Republican candidates were now behind in all five.

Honor to Peacekeepers

The award of a Nobel Peace Prize to the far-flung UN peacekeeping forces is al-most everyone's idea of the way these things ought to be done. The award captures the spirit of the day, at a time when this service of the United Nations is being applied in new places - the Gulf. Afghan-istan, perhaps next in the Western Sahara and Namibia. It also bestows deserved recognition on a function that is at the beart of the world organization's founding purpose and enduring rationale. Currently the United Nations has seven peacekeeping missions going, with a total of about 10,000 people in Cyprus, along the India-Pakistan cease-fire line in the disputed region of Jammu and Kashmir, and in several Middle East locations, plus the Gulf and Afghanistan. Over the years, 733 peacekeepers in their trademark blue belimets have been killed - in the name of the abstraction of international peace. Some governments may have had a political purpose in putting their soldiers at risk in this cause, but many of them also felt the tug of a powerful ideal. One American member of a current UN peacekeeping mission, Lienten-ant Colonel William Higgins, has been a prisoner of terrorists in Lehanon since February It is quite likely that the bestowers of this Nobel had in mind something beyond trib-ute. The Soviet Union and the United States have evaded their financial obligations to peacekeeping operations, adding to the immense strains on the work, budget and mo-rale of the United Nations. Only now are the two great powers ready to acknowledge, in parallel, the advantages of controlling inter-national chaos through this service. For the two of them to join in the applause for the prize without paying their full assessments promptly should be unthinkable.

The award draws notice to the connecion between peacekeeping and peacemak-ing. Peacekeeping can and often does mean stilling the guns and separating the combat-ants but not necessarily resolving the disputes that put them at odds. But "peace" in the sense of a cease-fire or truce can help establish the conditions for seeking a deep er peace while limiting buman suffering and loss, and preventing disputes from being resolved on the basis of strength alone. These are the plentiful gifts for which United Nations peacekeeping is bonored now. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

Let 100 Sports Bloom

South Korea deserves Olympian bonors for staging a glorious global spectacular --the first trouble-free Summer Olympics since 1964. More athletes from more countries competed in more events than ever before. But these superlatives raise yet another question: Is the Olympics getting to be too much of a good thing? Too many events, not enough focus?

Ask any 10 viewers which events to zap. which to keep and what to add, and you will get 10 answers. After the outrageous mis-handling of several boxing bouts in Seoul. some argue for eliminating all sports that involve subjective judgment. Although the brutality of boxing is grounds enough for its elimination, a no-judges rule would mean no diving either, no Greg Louganis.

Others would ent out sports that have focal world championships of their own, like tennis with its four grand slam tournaments, a sport that was restored to the games this year. But such a standard would also knock out soccer, an established Olympic sport.

Others propose eliminating synchronized swimming. Too arty, they say; not a "sport," More arty than figure skating? In any case, judging from all the air time NBC gave it, there must be a big audience. And if synchronized swimming goes, can tae kwon do or handball be far behind?

Incurable romantics yearn for classical purity. Like the ancient games? Those were for Greek males only, no women. That wouldn't fly now. The government gave winners cash prizes. Some do nov; most don't Today, under the loose reins of the international committee, national and international federations for each sport set their own rules. So tennis, for example, can be all-professional, while basketball is mixed. Don't expect consistency soon.

The Olympics are growing, and soon will grow again; baseball will become an official sport at the Games of the XXV Olympiad in Barcelona, and bowling wants to be.

Jousting over how the Olympics should be run is not yet an official sport, and there may be no way to limit the growth. Smart dark clouds of apprehension that bung over the Games when the torch was lit in Seoul. At that time there were still fears of some devastating act of terrorism by North Korea or some more distant elements. Long before the Games had ended, though, the before the Games had ended, though, the fears had been largely forgotten. The South Korean government and people did them-selves proud in playing host and in keeping the peace; the biggest threat to the prevail-ing harmony was the Koreans' displeasure with some of the American television coverage of them - a complaint they share with a number of recent American presidents.

As for the American athletes, they took a step back down from the heights scaled at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles, where a boycott by Eastern bloc nations allowed U.S. domination. This year the East was back, and the Americans finished a distant third in the nation-by-nation medal counts. Afterward, as usual, some American sportsmen called for a better-financed and better-disciplined U.S. effort, and indeed a number of gold medals were apparently lost solely because of laxity or lack of practice a boxer fails to get to the ring in time for his bout, a baton pass is missed in a relay race, a young gymnast observes a performer from an illegal place, causing a damaging penalty against the U.S. team. But also as usual there were those electrifying and often unexpected triumphs from the Americans - the swimming victories of the tiny Janet Evans; the wild celebration of the U.S. baseball team and its one-handed winning pitcher, Jm Abbott; the heart-stopping rush of sprinter Evelyn Ashford as she surged to victory in the final leg of the 400-meter relay.

Such moments have more to do with the spirit of the Games than do the medal counts. On the final night, the American boxer Roy Jones was deprived of a gold medal by the judges in a bitterly disputed. decision. Shortly afterward, Andrew Maynard fought Nourmagoined Chanavzov of the Soviet Union in a light-heavyweight bout. The two fighters battered one another for three rounds, fighting bravely if none too artfully, displaying both the best and

Mr. Conservative Shows the Candidates the Way

WASHINGTON - With a sense of timing far better than he could have calculated, Barry Goldwater this month publishes his autobigraphy. In "Goldwater," the 1964 Republican presidential nominee and hero of the modern American conservative movement reflects on an unusually rich life of almost eight decades and on the current political and governmental scene. His enllaborator, Jack Casserty, has not censored Mr. Goldwater's uninhibited vocabulary. so the book bristles with characteristically pointed Goldwater judgments on people in politics, business and the press who have crossed his path.

What makes it pertinent, beyond the pleasure of bearing the authentic Goldwater voice one more time, is the light it sheds on today's Republican Party. It is a party to which Mr. Goldwater, probably more than anyone else, gave his stamp. Today we are accustomed to thinking of the Republicans as the party of conservatism. Before 1964 that was hardly the case. All through the 1930s, '40s and '50s, moderate-progressives con-rolled its nominations. In 1960 a political chame-leon, Richard Nixon, signed a deal with Nelson Rockefeller that cinched his nomination. He chose as his running mate a liberal Republican from Massachusetts, Henry Cabot Lodge. Eight years later the deal that nominated Mr. Nixon was signed with Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. And when it came time to choose a running mate, Mr. Nixon passed up the governor of Massachu-setts, John Volpe, and chose a more right-wing new face, Spiro Agnew of Maryland, What had happened in between was the Goldwaterization of the Republicans - the most signifi-cant losing presidential campaign since Al Smith's By David S. Broder in 1928. Just as Mr. Smith forecast the shape of the m 1928, Just as Mr. Smith forecast the shape of the New Deal coalition, Mr. Goldwater's race re-shaped the Republican Party in ways that let it win four of the next five presidential elections. He moved the party south and west, out of the Atlantic seaboard and the Middle West and into the Sunbelt. He moved it from advocacy of federal civil rights action to a position of hostility or indifference. He moved it rightward on a whole variety of other issues, and it has never gone back. Ronald Reagan got his start in that 1964 campaign, with a memorable national television address. George Bush has his roots in the same experience. He first ran for office (a Texas Senate seat) in 1964 and called himself "a Goldwater Republican." The link between the two men is provided by Dean Burch, the young lawyer on Mr. Goldwater's staff who became the Republican national chairman in 1964 and who is today one of Mr. Bush's closest friends and advisers. Mr. Burch is just one of scores of Republicans still playing key roles who were drawn into politics by Mr. Goldwater's campaign. Why was it so influential? Because Mr. Goldwater took the issues seriously but was wonderfully irreverent about himself. It is a lesson that both Mr. Bush and Michael Dukakis could profitably ponder. Reading this book, you are left in no doubt why Mr. Goldwater told a startled Dan Quayle recenty to "tell George to start talking about the issues."

That is what politics is about to him - not the pursuit of power but the clash of ideas. He was eager to compete in 1964 against John Kennedy, for whom be had great affection, because he knew that Mr. Kennedy would debate policies. He dreaded running against Lyndon Johnson, and not just because his political judgment told him that the American public would not vote to change presidents again just a year after the tran-ma of the Kennedy assassination. Mr. Goldwater also guessed correctly that Mr. Johnson would not tolerate a principled debate on the issues. But be went out and talked about his beliefs in what he Inew was a foredoomed campaign. That stick-to-his-guns quality was half of Mr. Goldwater's appeal. In contrast, Mr. Bush is comparing like a man who can't stand the thought of losing. That fear has led him to use tactics that Mr. Goldwater — who gave him an important endorsement last winter in New Hampshire — plainly can barely stomach. It has led Mr. Bush to hedge on his basic beliefs. The other half of Mr. Conservative's appeal was his indelible sense that there is more to life than politics, that friendships and fun are not depenpolines, that means up and the are not repar-dent on the vote count. Every aspiring candidate should read the chapter called "A Double Life," in which Mr. Goldwater contrasts "the straight life" of his political career with "the sweet life --athlete, ham radio operator, pilot, car buff, photographer, gadgeteer and all-around tinkerer." Mr. Goldwater knows that victory can have too high a price; just read his scathing words on Mr. Nixon. And he is living proof that defeat can be the source of future vindication, if you are true to your convictions and keep a sense of humor about yourself. His antobiography is a reminder that politics can be both principled and pleasurable. The Washington Post.

N EW YORK — Anyone of vot-ing age knows enough to take for granted that when he listens to campaign oratory be will get a char-acteristically and intentionally debased form of discourse. Thus, the presidential debate should not have sappointed normal expectations. But when it comes to the issue of defense policy and U.S.-Soviet rela-tions, Governor Michael Dukakis has been giving disingenuousness a whole new dimension. He is trying to soars new dimension. He is trying to soars with the hawks while feeding with the doves. The irony is that he must en-dorse the results obtained by Ronald Reagan while disavowing the means that were necessary to achieve them. It is no scoret that Mr. Dukakis long numbered himself among the ardent opponents of nuclear weapons. Back in the days when there was an active movement for a nuclear freeze — the days when the United States was threatening, or promising, to deploy intermediato-range missiles in West-em Enrope to offset the already-de-ployed Soviet SS-20s, while the Soviets on their side were engaged in a mas-sive effort to keep this from happening - Mr. Dukakis was a member of that movement in good standing. Currently he testers back and forth a very close to the edge of outright unilateralism, offering an occasional gracious nod to the Stealth bomber, say, but steadily opposing any of the weapons systems that have been de-clared necessary to a modernized nuclear deterrent: the MX, the Midgetman, the Strategic Defense Initiative. SDI, he insists, will, among other disasters, sink America's already overburdened economy. His own defense policy is to strengthen what he deems to be the country's shamefully neglected conventional forces. But the members of the peace movement who have all these years been advocating such a policy, and most especially Michael Dukakis, are now in something of a pickle. Having declared that the arms race in and of itself would inevitably end in nuclear war, they are now confronted with the achievement of Ronald Reagan, "wannonger" par excellence, who has succeeded in getting Mikhail Gorbachev to agree in principle to a mutual reduction of unclear arsenals.

One need not share President Reagan's faith that arms reduction by fitself will contribute to U.S. security - many of us do not - to recognize that Moscow's concessions could only have resulted from Soviet worryabout the renewal of U.S. military strength: the renewal that the Reagan administration undertook and that Michael Dokakis opposed. Surely a man intelligent enough to have got himself nominated for the presidency knows what did actually bring the Soviets to the point of serious negotiation: the upgrading of U.S. nuclear weaponry, the deploy-ment of intermediate-range missiles and the decision to launch the SDL Mr. Dukakis clearly would prefer (

A Thaw Between Two Giants

Beijing and Moscow are beginning to move closer in their thinking. While their national interests continue to command priority, they share the view that they would be better off if the tension between them were reduced. Both sides are occupied with revamping their economies and removing the fetters that communism imposed on individual initiative. This is not an easy task, and they realize they have enough problems without having to take upon themselves the added burden of ever-rising defense spending.

If a Deng-Gorbachev meeting has be-come a possibility it is because the Soviets have started to solve two of the three obstacles which the Chinese insist have to be removed before relations can be normalized. Moscow is withdrawing its troops from Afghanistan. It has pulled its forces back from the Chinese-Soviet border. More importantly, the Soviets appear to be putting pressure on Vietnam to pull its troops out of Cambodia. The amount of that pressure, and the degree to which Moscow is willing to risk the loss of Cam Ranh Bay, are unclear. For the moment, the Chinese are satisfied that the Soviets are willing to help resolve the Cambodian issue.

Chinese-Soviet normalization promises to yield economic dividends for the two countries. Border trade, which is already booming, will further increase. The exchange of Chinese consumer goods for Soviet timber and machinery will be broadened to include other commodities. Because the goods are bartered, both sides will be able to conserve their limited foreign exchange. From the regional perspective, the reduction of tension between the two enhances peace in this area. The weapons of destruction which both sides have are awesome [and] capable of igniting a world war. This is not to say that China and the Soviet Union will no longer enmpete for influence. They are likely to continue to do so. What is encouraging about Chinese-Soviet developments in recent years is that the desire to limit tension and prevent differences from spilling into open conflict is stronger than ever before.

Knitting Pakistan Together

The return of party politics to Pakistan was always going to be difficult. Army rule has alienated the population from the gov-ernment. A denial of democracy now could only make that estrangement worse. But a free and fairly elected government which could claim to represent all the people just might be able to knit the country together again.

Political unbeaval in this poor Caribbean nation could send waves of refugees on font into the adjoining Dominican Re-public, with destabilizing effect on that struggling democracy, and by boat to the beaches of Florida.

Economic collapse could lead to food and petroleum shortages and calls for greatly increased external aid. American Intervention Would Be Folly

A S Haiti lurches from crisis to crisis the United States stands by seemingly impotent, incapable of deciding either to bring real pressure on the regime to mend its ways, to use economic aid to keep the enuntry from sinking still further into poverty - or to intervene militarily. The last time the United States intervened in Haiti was in 1915. The situation was not unlike today's. There had been continuous civil war, rebellion and riots, and six presidents in four years. The fast one, Guillaume sam, had been captured by a mob and hacked to pieces.

Washington was perturbed. Would the Europeans intervene? The Panama Canal had just opened, which appeared to increase the strategic importance of Hain. On July 28, marines and sailors from the USS Washington marched into the capital. A bemused populace offered no resistance. the record of occupation was mixed. The Americans provoked resentment reintroducing the French system of forced labor to build public works. Big U.S. companies bought up the best land and evicted the peasants. Yet Haiti developed as never before. There were roads, bospitals, ports and the first automatic telephone system in Latin America. There was political calm.

But resentment continued to build, and an independence treaty was finally signed in 1933. Within years the roads and ports fell into disrepair, the phones stopped working and the bospital equipment rusted.

Would the United States do better in 1988? There is no reason to think so. America should do one thing: restor a commis aid and let the poor know it cares. Beyond that, the Haitians have to do it themselves.

The numerous presidential candidates, including the half-dozen or so "centrists" with the best chance of winning had weak to nonexistent power bases of their own to counterbalance the disconsolate Duvalierists and the increasingly ambitious army leadership. So these candidates competed for popular support by pledging retribution for past wrongs, thus increasing apprenension among Duvalierists and army officers.

The manipulated election of Leshe Manigat as president in January led to a greater consolidation of army con-trol. He was a respected intellectual who had been living in exile, and the principal members of his cabinet were also returned exiles. This tended to alienate the government from many qualified Haitians who had stayed in the country through the Duvalier years. The Manigat government had no real power base within Haiti.

The United States cannot control events in Haiti, short of a military invasion, which no one advocates. Nevertheless, it does have considerable ability to influence the outcome.

What does this mean for the weeks and months ahead? First, Haiti should not be ignored during the election and transition periods in the United States. Washington should make certain points clear to various sectors in Haiti:

 Economic recovery and sustained development in Hain are feasible in a relatively short time, given a democratic government that is competent to manage its economic programs. Haiti has the great strength of its human resources: an able, self-confident cadre of private sector leaders and technocrats, a labor force willing to work al support for a renewed reform effort tion of just how the country hapin Haiti. Economic aid would focus on the enormous needs in rural infrastucture, health care and education. Private sector support would promote new investment and job creation.

· The need for democratic, competent government is the central challenge for Haitians, and the specifics can be worked out only among Haitians. In general, this would appear to mean some form of national conciliation and unity. Respect for human rights and a stop to violence must come first. Cooperation among democratic groupings should focus on the future, not on past wrongs. The army-would have to relinquish its historic dominance. The Duvalierist political network, which is far broader than the relatively few Macoute thugs, would somehow have to cease being a threat to democratic rule while offering up the talents of individual mem-

LONDON - The cauldron of murder still boils and bubbles. To-day [Oct. 4] the Daily Telegraph publishes facsimiles of "Jack the Ripper's" let-ter and postcard. Leaving aside the almost comical tone of triumph in which Mr. Dukakis issued this challenge, as if it were George Bush and not he who had been caught out in a contradiction, one can hardly blame him for his haste. Given the chance to think it over, people might have been reminded that had his own views on defense policy prevailed, the Soviets, far from it finding it advisable to reach agree ments with America, would have had a hard time deciding whether to langh with relief or with contempt for. But then, one day, Mr. Gorbachev threw his arms around Mr. Gromyko for younger men of talent." The fact that the younger man of talent in question was none other than Mr. Gorbachev perhaps was a baim to Mr. Gromyko's spirit. But when I read that my friend had been removed from the Soviet presidency, 1 thought not of disputes but of the fine times we had had together, whether be knew it or oot. I recalled the day when he walked out of the brand new UN, the first of a series of walkouts that made "pull a Grom" part of the slang of the day, like "let's roll."

I was a very young reporter on The Times's city staff and, nobody else available, was assigned to stake out the Sovi-et Consulate, where he had holed up. Suddenly Mr. Gromyko emerged and said he was going back to the UN.

All the reporters ran for phones, but I, 1 hopped into a cab, pointed to the Gromyko limousine and, so help me, said: "Follow that car."

Mr. Grontyko did not go back to the UN but soun around town, my cab keeping up. He just wanted fresh air. As a reward for my initiative, I was commit-ted to the UN bureau of The Times, there to remain for nine years.

I became Mr. Gromyko's Boswell, 1 must say he never seemed to appreciate it. Never once did he say a kind word to the young reporter. Is it possible he did not even know I was there? Was he bowing to somebody else? Still, I cherish the thought that perhaps I helped make him what he is today, or at least was until a few days ago. Mr. Gromyko was an appar-atchik. When he was told to denounce, he denounced. Told to make nice, he did his best. Instructed to help cover up the true story of the fate of Raoul Wallenberg, he did.

He is not given to revealing his thoughts. Once some important Americans invited him to secret talks about the possibility of improving Soviet-Ameri-can relations in a Manhattan apartment, He listened. What he thought of it imself, knows God; certainly the others in the room oever did find out.

And the day he left the United States, after having spent 10 years in Washing-ton and New York, a reporter asked him whether he had enjoyed life in America, "I worked here," said Mr. Gromyko. So I guess I never will find out whether he ever gets nostalgic about me, and the old days at the United Nations, and all that. The New York Times,

Olympics in the Larger World: Not All Rivalry Is Healthy

Regarding "... and by the Way, Thanks for the 8 Basketballs" (Sports, Sept. 20) and "The New Olympians: Winning is Everybody's Business" (Opinion, Sept. 20):

These two articles form an interesting contrast. The first, on the surprise opening-round victory of the Central African Republic's basketball team, reads almost like a fairy tale. A joyous player's comment, "We cannot know anything better than this," seems to me a perfect expression of the Olympic spirit.

The second article, in which Samuel Fisar uses the "vigorous international rivalry" in the Olympic Games as a metaphor for the healthy spirit of com-petition in a "wide open" world economy, exemplifies the dangerous king-ofthe-hill thinking that seems to dominate discussion of world affairs in this American election year. Even as it emphasizes the emergence of a new set of players. Mr. Pisar's talk of "the Olympic struggle for economic survival" ignores the fact that a solid majority of the world's people are simply oot in the race.

The Seoul Olympics are the first Games I have viewed from outside the United States. I was able to join my neighbors in rooting for athletes who had precious little chance of winning. Granted, it was difficult to follow the Games when there was no electricity, as was the case the night I read the two articles, but these things - power shortages and los-ing - are just part of bie here, as they are, I'm sure, in the Central African Republic. To my neighbors, and to the rest of the Third World, terms like "struggle" and "survival" mean something a bit more immediate than they do to Mr.

Pisar, Michael Dukakis or George Bush. Some 160 nations were able to send athletes to Scoul. All were glad to take part, but not all expected to win. In economics as in sports, the three-or fourway battle for the gold is only part of the story. The article about the basketball team is a wonderful story of inclusion cooperation and participation; Mr. Pi-sar's piece, on the other hand, is a too familiar story of threats and domination - of winners and losers. If we are truly interested in survival, perhaps we need to include the perennial losers in our plans for global progress. The Olympics, and the world, will be the better for it.

I know the Health Center means well. But its displays fill me with foreboding. There is no activity, no holiday, that sooner or later I do not come to see as a peril, a menace. As I pass the displays in the weeks before Christmas, I come to think there is no way I will survive the holidays. In Cape Town, a Rare Apartheid Debate

GENERAL NEWS

By Christopher S. Wren New York Times Service

CAPE TOWN - To a hushed audience, the Reverend Alian Hendrickse described in detail how his father's "beantiful home" had been knocked down, brick by brick, when their old neighborhood in Uitenhage was declared legal for whites only. Mr. Hendrickse, the leader of the mixed-race Labor Party, was not preaching to the converted at a church or anti-aparthcid rally. He was addressing the Parliament of South Africa, whose wood-paneled chambers have seated the staunch defenders of white supremacy.

You can shake your head, but you stole my ground," Mr. Hendrickse said, looking directly at the disapproving members of the ruling National Party, before the speaker, Louis Le Grange, ruled him out of order for characterizing an act of Parliament as theft. We were robbed of our birthright," the unrepentant Mr. Headrickse persisted. The drama was played out at a rare joint session of Parliament, whose three separate chambers had convened to debate new government legislatioo amending the Group Areas Act, which is the legal basis for the world's most explicit

The government presented its amendments as a bold new step in a process of gradual change. Its liberal critics contend that the amendments will usher in even greater cruchties, while conservative legislators see the door being left ajar to Communist anarchy.

The amendments legalize some "free settlement areas" open to all races, generally in neighborhoods that have already unofficially integrated. But they tighten up existing segregation provisions, eliminating a prohibition on evicting anyone until alternate accommodations have been lound and imposing harsher penalties for violatious, inchuding the forced sale of a house that a landlord of one race rents to a tenant of another race. The emotion suffusing the debate seemed inevitable. But it was not quite what President Pieter W. Botha had in mind in 1984 when his government tried to appease critics of South Africe's whitesonly legislature, the House of Assembly, by creating a mixed-race chamber, the House of Representa-tives, and another smaller forum for ethnic Asians, the House of Delegates. The formula ensured a continu

DAMASCUS --- Mithileshwar Singh, released by his captors after 20 months in confinement with three American bostages, was flown aboard a U.S. military aircraft to West Germany Tuesday on his way to the United States, Damascus airport officials said.

The Indian-born U.S. resident left the Syrian capital alone in late evening, leaving behind his wife, Lala Mani, who had driven from Beirut for a reunion after their long separation, an Indian diplomat

He is expected to undergo a medical checkup at a U.S. military hos-pital in Wiesbaden before traveling to the United States.

Mr. Singh, a university professor who holds resident alien status in the United States, was freed in Beirut late Monday and escorted by Syrian intelligence officials across the Bekaa valley and into Syria. He was handed over to U.S. and Indian diplomats by Syrian officials. Three American educators kidnapped with Mr. Singh on January 24, 1987, and with whom he stayed throughout his ordeal, are still detained

Mr. Singh, looking drawn and underweight, declined to comment on the conditions or whereabouts of his three colleagues but said that while a hostage his "treatment was better" than he had expected. But there is no substitute for freedom in the world," he said. Mr. Singh struggled to maintain an air of dignity but his voice be-trayed his hardships in confine-ment, He is a diabetic and has to be treated for high blood pressure. Please, please, respect my freedom now; let me be quiet, let me be NASA and its engineers. Since the Challenger explosion, the space agency's mission has been clear -- 10 get the shuttle flying again. But the 32month hiatus has postponed decisions on the more fundamental questions about the kind of space program the nation wants and can afford. Perhaps the most fundamental question for the presidential nominees, Vice Presi-dent George Bush and Governor Michael S. Dukakis, is whether an aggressive 10 (c) manned space program - as opposed to a "iten one stabilized at about the current batiget level - is a luxury the nation can tio longer afford.

For more than a decade, advocates of the space program have accused budget-mind-ed officials in Congress and the executive already on the books, NASA's annual bud-get - $10.6 billion - will have to double by the year 2000.

Mr. Bush has supported the proposed space station and the manned space pro-gram in general. Mr. Dukakis has focused on the issue only recently, after Democrats in Congress pointed out the value of space station jobs in the key electoral states of California, Texas and Ohio. Since then, he has made several statements of support for the project.

But both candidates have indicated that budget constraints could prevent the country from moving ahead with new undertak-Some space experts say they favor an-generation of scientists and engineers. Many favor cooperating with the Soviets on such a project. But another strategy is gathering support within the space community. Sally Ride, a former astronaut, and others argue that the nation must learn to walk in space before it tries to gallop.

This emerging school favors a methodi-cal buildup of a space "infrastructure" — development of new technology, research in space biology and a mixed rocket fleet, aimed at the establishment of a hmar base as a stepping stone to an eventual Mars VOVage.

Both scenarios would require a manned space station, but not the same kind. The United States and its international

Estonia Hums as Cadres Of Political Reformers Gather and Fulminate

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. - Representatives of grass-roots political groups from around the Soviet Union have met here in the capital of Estonia and denounced what they described as attempts by the Communist authorides to prevent them from organizing freely, gain-ing access to the mass media and participating in elections.

Complaints of official harassment and even of persecution were aired at the meeting Monday, which was attended by members of about 50 informal political organizations from areas of the Soviet Union as diverse as the Ukraine to the Soviet Far East.

The gathering followed a week-end congress of the Estonian Popular Front, a mass movement that adopted a platform of radical reform calling for, among other things, free elections, property guarantees and an end to compulsory military service. In contrast to Estonia, where the Popular Front has emerged as a powerful, legally recognized body, similar movements in other Soviet republics have experienced great difficulty organizing and acquiring legal status. Legal registration is essendal for any group that wants to present candidates for elections scheduled for oext spring to newly constituted national and provincial legislatures.

Many participants at the meet-ing condemned what they described as "an information blockade" imposed by the central Soviet media on oews of the political developments in Estonia. Newspapers in other Soviet republics have carried only sparse references to the Estonian Popular Front, which has demonstrated its mass support with meetings attended by as many as 300,000 people. "A decision must have been taken at a very high level not to provide information about what was happening in Estonia," Rem Blum, a professor at Tartn University and end would result in a more tolerant attitude toward informal political groups. Informal poliocal organizations began appearing in Moscow and Leningrad last year in support of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's program of perestroika, or restructuring of So-viet society. Initially made up in most cases of no more than a half dozen people, they gradually grew by forming alliances with other groups and by attracting new supporters through rallies and demontrations. The meeting here Monday provided a unique opportunity for members of groups scattered across the Soviet Union to exchange information, and when not listening to speeches, they swapped address-es, circulated crudely produced leaflets and signed petitions.

The Moscow-hased Democratic Perestroika Movement collected signatures on one petitioo denouncing a July government decree that imposes severe restrictions on the holding of meetings and demonstrations. Local anthorities in many parts of the country have used the decree, which was rushed through the Supreme Soviet, or national legislature, without public debate, as a pretext for declaring illegal all but the most innocuous public gatherings.

The petition, which described provisions of the decree as a violation of the Soviet constitution, has already been signed by about 500 leading intellectuals, including the Nobel Peace laureate, Andrei D. Sakharov.

The veterans told stories of escaping in alcohol and drugs. At times, their comments and reactions were so alike, only language distinguished who was speaking of Vietnam and who of Afghani-SLAD.

"Every one of us there tried drugs," Mr. Kalandarishvili said. "Every other one was an occasiooal user and every 10th was a regular user."

"Many of our guys became al-coholics and addicts," said Mr. Meshad, who is executive director of the Vietnam Veterans Aid Foundation, a nonprofit organi-zation in California. "And many of our casualties were after theil war, when vets couldn't cope and took their own lives. We don't want to see that happen to you."

It was not lost on any of these men that they might have been fighting against each other if the wars they had been in had spread.

But somewhere in surviving, in enduring the pain of rejection and rehabilitation, the veterans found a common ground in these wars that their governments could not.

"During the war, I drove over an American-made mine, and spent half a month in the hospital," Alexander Lavior said. "My friends were killed by American, weapons, and for a long time I was very angry at all Americans. When I got back, away from the war itself, I realized our Soviet guns killed people, too. They probably killed some of your friends in Vietnam."

But this was a collection to give nostalgia a But this was a collection to give nostalgia a good name. It started with brisk navy knits clongated cardigans over striped bathing-belle shorts. With white knee socks and an-kle-strap pumps, they looked junior, but charming. The real beachwear, which came later, was snow white, stretchy, scalloped at all the edges and delicious. all the edges and delicions. Lagerfeld said he was inspired by the arty, bohemian world of the painter Vanessa Bell. Artists' smocks in fresh imen looked adomble over crisp shorts, which also came in e more sophisticated dark silk print with a tailored linen jacket.

Long was the message for skirts, and grace-ful dresses, which were universally in linen and had a nustic feel without being at all peasant-style. Shoes were flat, which looked Pantsuits inspired by the same prewar peri-od were in straw-colored linen, with overlays of white guipone lace, as though a confield were stippled with flowers. In the same mood was an impression of meadow flowers on a filmy voile skirt.

For Fendi, the summer season is always more difficult than winter furs. But this was a fresh, pleasing collection, even if Lagerfeld's good friend Anna Piaggi (in easy-care black Chanel banded with viny!) judged it as "a lot of ironing."

Krizia also tried a little tenderness. Shell pink and toffee beige were favored colors in this sweet-toothed collection, where all the lines were soft, the fabrics fluid, hemlines long and the effect ravishingly pretty. By the time that Mariuccia Mandelh, the Krizia designer, walked out on the runway with her two grandchildren, she received e deserved Ovation

The Krizia woman, who has often in the past had a hard edge, was softened up with gentle wide-leg pants and high waist skirts that were either skinny or rippling out as they lapped the calves. There were no short skirts, but plenty of shorts and pants. Shoulders were rounded, jackets cut on the curve and the flat shoes that were worn throughout even for evening gave a feel of summer. So did the swimsuits banding the body in sea blue and black, and the shortand-sweet cream cable knits topping flared shorts in cappuccino silk.

Halter tops layered over T-shirts and tieback pinafores were complicated. But sundresses with sweeping skirts below a strapless top were refreshing.

Laura Biagioti's trip to China, screened as a stylish travelogue over Milan's fashion weekend, was relived on the runway. The First Empress of Cashmere flew in a dozen models from Beijing and dressed them lac-quer red, Ming yellow and Mao blue. Clothes were on the Eastern side too, with loose mnics over narrow pants and colorful dragon and fish motifs on black swimsnits.

The elongated lines of Gianfranco Ferre's collection and its salty navy and white coloring looked a litle austere. Yet he does the sculpted style very well.

Paradoxically, it was Ferre's evening clothes, not usually a strength with this designer, which looked modern and elegant: slim draped inky crepe or short midnight blue satin, hi up with gold jewelry or spangled with sequined chiffon. Even regular straight pants topped with a meringue of bloused white organdy looked fresh.

A Fendi offering for spring and summer.

There seemed to be too many straight lines in the daytime clothes, which took the sea as their theme and included bold scarf prints of knotted cream ropes on a navy ground. Wide deck-chair stripes in red or blue on white accentuated the naval theme and came in billows of fabric that tied in to the body.

Ferré opened the show with tailoring cut close-in, mostly pantsnits in the inevitable navy blue starred with big gilt buttons. A trapeze-line top swinging over a short skinny skirt came in stiff white piqué. Also on the body line was e dress of elegant namehtiness which looked as though it was made up of silken rush matting and showed glimpses of flesh. Less subtle was black leather with giant gilded eyelets punched out down the spine.

There was a whiff of a different feeling in the longer skirts in chiffon and voile, in the soft sarong wraps and an interesting high-waisted crepe pinafore that suddely blew in from nowhere,

The swimsuits, every one in navy blue, were Ferre at his best, cut on clean lines with great precision, but in tactile fabrics that included stretch velour and a fine fishing net mesh trapped under an overlay of chiffon.

The Hawaian sunset colors for evening were also very fine and included deep blash pink and coral shot-silk blouses warming up a severely tailored jacket.

INTERNATIONAL HERALD TRIBUNE, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1988

S ald Thomas's principal objective when he returned here from New York four years ago was to introduce a new genre of theater, to upset the local cultural establish-ment or simply to gain fame, the Anglo-Brazilian stage director can fairly claim — and frequently docs — to have achieved all three.

"The ego side has been more than satisfied," he said, peering through Brechtian spectacles as if confessing to the sin of pride. "I have become a presence in Brazil's cultural life. People are already talking ebout the pre-Thomas and the post-Thomas cras of Brazilian

Indeed, by exciting some, angering others and stirring jealousy among more, the 34-year-old direc-tor has in e short time emerged as the most polemical figure on the Brazilian theatrical scene, polarizing public, critics, actors and directors with his provocative views and avant-garde work.

Thomas is, for a start, e master of blicity, with interviews, reviews spotlight. and round tables about his pieces - and opinions - frequently oc-copying pages of the cultural supplements of newspapers. But he is also, at least for Brazil, e daring innovator of form and content, inspired by what he describes as the "subversion" by the likes of the gnese) or as an Englishman (he American director Robert Wilson, spent his late teens and early 20s in and the East German playwright Heiner Müller

So far, he has used works by Beckett, Wagner, Mérimée and Kafka as vehicles for his productions, but he is moving toward creations that he calls "dry opera," characterized by e cinematographic use of lights and blackouts, prerecorded music, almost choreo-graphic acting and a sort of antilanguage that be describes as "verbal hemorrhage."

He is taking three pieces to New York for performances at La Mama, "The Process," "Praga" and "Carmen Com Filtro" are Thomas creations within borrowed frameworks. "The Process," the most critically praised of the three, follows the story line of Kafka's "Trial" and uses music from Wagner's opera, "Parsifal." "Praga" (which in Portuguese means both Prague and plague), with music by Shostakovich, is evocative of Kafka but not based on a text, and "Carmen Com Filtro" ("Cannen With Filtertips"), with an original score by Philip Glass, adapts and sati-rizes Bizet's version of the Mérimée

Although Thomas directed 18 plays by Beckett at La Mama be-tween 1979 and 1984, he says he is oervous about the reaction to his new pieces. "New York looks like a very open-minded place, but it is in hings happening in New York are brought from Germany. The most important theater artist of the sec-end half of the 20th century is Bob Wilson, and he can hardly work in the United States."

Certainly, Brazil still seems unsure what to make of Thomas. In e sense, Brazilian theater was ripe for sense, strazman incater was tipe for the shakeup he provided: in the 1970s it was suffocated by the cen-sorship of e military dictatorship and in the 1980s swamped by com-mercial productions that Thomas dismisses as "soaps without cameras." "Japan knows nothing about Europe," Yves de Pimodan, a spokesman for Dentsu Inc., said in Brussels on Tuesday. "The concept of Europe simply doesn't exist in Japan."

Dentsu, a leading Japanese ad firm, announced a $222.64 million project to promote awareness of the continent. The agency is concerned that Japan might lose out at the scheduled 1992 aboli-tion of frontiers among members of the European Community.

In a symbolic gesture, the budget for the project was given as 200 million European currency units. The Ecn is a notional currency. It is based on a basket of currencies of EC members. Dentsu said the lynchpin of its project would be 1991, which

VER THE WEEKEND, Thomas Pollock, chairman of MCA Motion Picture Group, received some good news. The new release by MCA's Universal Pictures, "Gorillas in the Mist," which was in its second week, was doing very well. The film — based on the life of Dian Fossey, who studied gorillas and was murdered in Africa. -- is difficult to market, Mr. Pollock said, in part because Sigourney Weaver is not a major movie star and the plot is not "high concept." That is Hollywood shorthand for a film that can easily be described in one sentence.

Universal's initial research showed that the film's greatest appeal would be for women older than 25. But to make sure the commercials appealed to a wide andience, the studio created a variety of different ads.

"We promoted different elements of the film," Mr. Pollock said. "We promoted different elements of the film, Mr. Follock saw. The story involves Ms. Fossey's work in Africa, as well as her romance with a married photographer. With women older than 25 in mind, "we did a spot for the daytime soap operas," Mr. Pollock said. It played off the notion of a woman choosing between career and a married man who gets a divorce in order to marry her.

The studio also created a more action-oriented commercial to reflect the exotic nature of the movie. It was shown on morning talk shows.

Universal also prepared a one-minute commercial that ran nationally on the opening night of the Olympic Games. "That spot emphasized all action elements of the film," Mr. Pollock said, adding that he thought the ad was crucial to the film's success last weekend.

Texas Air Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

STOCKHOLM -- Scandinavian Airlines System said Tuesday it had agreed to pay Texas Air Corp. $50 million as part of a cooperation pact that also gave it the right to take a 10 percent stake in the Houston-based company.

An SAS statement said that the agreement involved joint facilities. ground handling, marketing and sales representation between SAS and the two major U.S. carriers controlled by Texas Air: Eastern Air Lines and Continental Airlines. "In addition," it said, "the partics will have strong financial and management ties." The option agreement gave SAS the right to buy up to 10 percent of Texas Air's common stock on the open market or by tenders. The $50 million would be paid in three installments as various stages of the ment were implemented. SAS said the agreement, reached after nearly a year of negotiations was the airline industry's first comsive, global alliance between wo major international carriers. tinental currently has service

SAS has been seeking partners and affiliations with other carriers to make itself more competitive for the npcoming deregulation of Eu-ropean aritines, which might enable it to add additional routes to the United States.

The agreement with Texas Air may also help to persuade Conti-nental passengers arriving in London or Paris to connect with SAS flights to the airline's extensive network in Scandinavia It also gives SAS access to Continental's new terminal at Newark, A similar arrangement is envisaged for Eastern's terminal at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York, after renovations.

The SAS chief executive, Jan Carlzon, has said he wants to make the company one of Europe's top five airlines. But the Scandinavian home market of 17 million people is considered too small for him to succeed with it alone. industry analysts said the agree-ment was broadly favorable for

SAS, though some questioned whether Texas Air was the ideal partner. "It is important for SAS to get

Virgin Group Plans Stock Buy-Back Poor Stock Performance Hinders Plan for Acquisitions

PLC, the rock music and communications conglomerate, said Tuesday its management will buy back 37 percent of Virgin's shares at 140 pence ($2.38) a share, the price at which the shares were floated less than two years ago.

The offer is being made through Glowtrack Ltd., representing the founders of Virgin. The offer values the entire company at £248 million, Glowtrack said.

"The benefits of a listing, which were expected at the time of the flotation, are not being realized," the statement from Glowtrack said. Virgin's stock was floated in November, 1986, amid a blaze of publicity.

Glowtrack said the poor perfor-mance of Virgin's shares meant the company could not finance significant growth by acquisition or issue new shares through its listing.

The chairman of Virgin, Richard Branson, has been concerned that the company's 40,000 small investors have been losing money since the global market collapse last October.

Mr. Branson said at a news con-ference that the buy-out would give him the freedom to pursue expan-sion of his business and to make it one of Britain's top five private concerns in volume

A spokesman for Glowtrack property. said: "As a consequence of this Glowtra appointing performance of Virgin's share price, the founders have considered it to be inappropriate to use Virgin's listed shares to any significant extent for either acquisition purposes or the financing of growth through new issues." Mr. Branson founded Virgin in 1970 as a mail-order record business. He went on to establish the company as one of Britain's top 10 privately-owned businesses. Virgin Records, which has recorded such rock acts as the Sex

Pistols, Boy George and Culture Club, is still the core of the empire. But Virgin Group has widened its scope to include holdings in inx-ury tourism, cable television, film production, shops, nightclubs, publishing and a transatlantic air-line company. The buy-back offer does not include the company's majority-owned Virgin Atlantic According to British press re-ports, the deal represents the country's biggest management buy-out. It could set a precedent for other concerns, since the shares of many companies remain well below their pre-crash highs.

16 times the company's earnings plete the offer in January 1989.

sic, communications, and retail and Glowtrack said Virgin has a long-term investment strategy, par-ticularly in music and communications, which is expected to delay overall growth in profit. The man-agement group said it does not be-lieve the company should alter its strategy in response to its shareprice performance. Mr. Branson said his airline and his entertainment group would be working closer together. They will not formally merge but will be working as if they were one," he Virgin said a syndicate of four international banks, led by Citi-bank NA, a subsidiary of Citicorp, are advancing loans of up to £182.5 million. Of that, £100 million will be available to help finance the burn out and the holman mill be buy-out and the balance will be working capital for Glowtrack. EUROPE'S BUSINESS MAGAZINE

In fact, you could call International Management Europe's only business magazine. Because all the other magazines are written with their home markets in mind; they are American, English or German magazines that circulate 'abroad'.

International Management has no captive home market; uniquely it is written for senior executives all over Europe. It provides a pan-European perspective free from the background noise of national bias.

With 1992 fast approaching that's important; and Europe's leading businessmen know it.

International Management gives advertisers the opportunity to talk to, and influence, a concentrated and select audience of senior European Executives. Over * 218,000 men and women spread evenly across Europe who are making the corporate decisions that matter. Successful people with high disposable incomes who take the lead in forming European opinions and views.

International Management is valued and respected by its readership. Independent research confirms It as a major European business magazine. The European Businessman Readership Survey records that International Management is read by more businessmen in Europe than, for example, Newsweek, Fortune, The International Herald Tribune, The Wall Street Journal Europe, or Scientific American.

Its market is Europe and that is where it leads. Rightly.

For more information on how you can benefit by advertising in International Management, please contact your local International Management sales office.

WE CAME THROUGH WITH FLYING COLORS.

'KLM announces the departure of KL880 to Amsterdam.'

A khamsin wind off the desert has pushed the temperature in Dubai up to 116°F. Although past midnight, the skin of the aircraft is too hot to touch.

We take off and climb smoothly to 40,000 ft. The sea of air outside is rushing past at -84°F, colder than the South Pole.

KL880's tough polyurethane paint must cope simultaneously with these extremes.

Dawn breaks over a fleecy layer of cloud 30,000 feet below. But the stratospheric sky is clear.

As the sun lifts behind us, vast amounts of ultra-violet radiation bathe the aircraft.

Under this onslaught, human skin would perish.

KL880's painted skin neither discolors nor fades, neither cracks, flakes nor peels.

This is because one of its layers is 'Aerodur Clearcoat' that contains powerful ultra-violet filters.

Over the Alps, we fly into a thunderstorm. Twice, although the passengers don't realize it, lightning flashes near the aircraft.

KL880's paintwork is not even blistered.

Nor does the rain loosen the paint.

But why should water succeed where snow, sleet, hail, de-icing fluid, hydraulic fluid and aviation fuel have failed?

KL880's paint was developed by Akzo, one of the world's biggest chemical companies: 70,000 people active worldwide in chemicals, fibers, health care (where our work includes cancer research and AIDS diagnostics) and, of course, coatings.

It's quite likely that your car is equally well protected by an Akzo finish.

And if you're one of those traditionalists who like fountain pens, we may well have made the dyes for your ink.

(We're also, as it happens, the world's leading producer of kidney dialysis devices, industrial yarns and salt.) At 8:25 am, KL880 lands at Amsterdam, as fresh and glossy as when she left Dubai.

No wonder today so many of the world's passenger aircraft fly our colors.

Roh Predicts Ascent for South Korea With Fewer Exports

Los Angeles Times Service SEOUL --- President Roh Tac Woo predicted Tuesday that South Korea would enter the ranks of advanced industrialized nations by 1992 He also announced that the country would reduce its dependence upon exports for growth. In a major budget speech, Mr. Rob told the National Assembly that before his term ends in 1993, South Korea would be transformed into a creditor nation. Only two years ago it had the fourth-largest foreign debt in the world. The South Korean currency, the won, "will then become an international currency, enabling our citizens to travel around the world with only Korean money in their pockets," he

He also said "a better balance between exports - on which we have been depending heavily for growth - and domestic sales" would be achieved. His speech marked the first time a South Korean leader has deemphasized the need for exports, 40 percent of which have gone to the United States in recent years.

The president said an increase in per-capita income from slightly above $3,000 last year to $6,000 in 1992 would ensure steady growth of the domestic market. Leading-edge industries will continue to expand, and the government will invest more in infrastructure, assuring an annual economic growth of around 8 percent.

Assuming similar rates of growth

mand, Mr. Roh predicted that South Korean exports would climb to $90 billion in 1992, "making Korea one of the 10 largest trading nations in the world "

Last year, the nation had $47.3 billion in exports. The U.S. Embassy in Seoul predicted that total South Korean exports will rise to $57.5 billion this year.

Sounding a word of caution in a reference to the increasing demands of organized labor, Mr. Roh said South Korea's economic success threatens to create "public expectations and demands (that) are likely to soar to unrealistic heights." He warned that "no one can come up with a magic formula to satisfy the aspirations of all citizens in one fell swoop.

Dollar Mixed After Technical Rally

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispetcher NEW YORK - The dollar closed mixed after active trading thesday, inching up against most currencies but falling against the yen and the Canadian dollar.

Dealers attributed the currency's spotty gains to technical factors rather than fundamental strength, noting that operators were reluctant to take positions ahead of the U.S. employment data for September, to be announced Friday.

Traders said the market was inclined to sell dollars, but a drop in the British pound prevented the U.S. currency from falling across the board. The British govern-ment's decision to order the Kuwait Investment Office to sharply van investmen onne or anny reduce its holding in British Petro-liam Co. sparked speculation that Rewait might unload sterling

The dollar rose to 1.8648 Deutsche marks at the close from 1.8618

DM on Monday, while it advanced against the pound, which slipped to $1.6948 from $1.7018. The dollar also firmed to 6.3495 French francs from Monday's 6.3385.

accurate version of the story.

Israeli scholar and Oxford University don Avi Shlaim's researched account of 30 years of contacts between the Zionist leadership and Jordan's King Abdullah, contacts aimed at forestalling creation of an independent Palestin-ian state and assisting Abdullah in taking control of the Arab parts of Palestine. It is a fascinating story of duplici-ty and cynical double-dealing.

And parts of Patestine. It is a faschaning story of diput-ty and cynical double-dealing. Abdullah wanted from the beginning of his monarchy in 1921 to take over all of Palestine, giving the Jews local antooomy under his rule. This was unacceptable to the Zionists, but they maintained contact with him through-out the 1930s and '40s because he was useful: He was a ready state of course, the human consequences. The Palestinian leadership at the time was hardly blameless, hut oeither Ahdullah nor the Zionist leadership ever really cared that they left millions of Palestinians As is abundantly clear, they did not solve the Palestin-ian problem by toring to import it of smother it. Shlaim's As is abundantly clear, they did not solve the Palestin-an programatist, able to recognize when the Zionist move-ment had become too strong to be denied a part of Palestine, he was oot anti-Jewish and, above all, he hated the Palestine in problem by trying to ignore it or smother it. Shlaim's problem by trying to ignore it or smother it. Shlaim's book shows that, in the complex world of Middle East-ern politics, where states' interests overlap, Israel's kind of insulation and the palestine in the complex world of Middle East-the Palestine in the complex world of Middle East-the Palestine in the complex world of Middle Eastthe Palestinian leadership.

This made for a nice partnership, and in 1947, 10 days before the United Nations voted to partition Palestinc into an Arab and a Jewish state, Abdullah and the Zionists reached an understanding that, when the British analyst with the Central Intelligence Agency.

The partnership had its ups and downs. Abdullah pledged not to invade the Jewish part of Palestine, but the Zionists never agreed to similar constraints for them-

None of this has ever been precisely true, but and to have outnumbered and easily outmaneuvered the accurate version of the story.

York Mets streaked into town Monday after winning 29 of their last 36 games and were installed as solid favorites over the crippled Los Angeles Dodgers to win their second National League permant in three years.

They conceded, however, that the first hurdle in the playoff would be the tallest. On Tuesday night they were to face Orel Hershiser, who ended the season with a re-cord-breaking 59 scoreless innings. Hershiser hasn't given up a run since he gave up two in the fifth thing of a game Ang. 30 against the Expos in Montreal.

But the Mets said that while they respected him as a gifted profes-sional, they did not fear him. "Orel Hershiser isn't my problem," said Dwight Gooden, who was to pitch the opener for the Mets. The Dodger hitters are the gays I've got to beat. So I can't really dwell on what Hershiser has done. He's done a great job. It's awesome ---six shutonts in a row. But he won't beat us by himself."

"I don't feel any extra pressure." Hershiser said. "I feel less. If f give up a run or two or three, the so-called streak probably won't be ing from the mound [Monday] and over, anyway. The league office felt slight pain." tells me that the streak is intact

"Game 1 is Game 1. It's an atti-perhaps won't start mtil Satur-tude-adjusting game. A lot will be day's Game 4. He pitched 100 in-read into it. If the Mets win, people mings in the Merican League last will say the Mets won 10 of 11 against the Dodgers this season and are continuing their domi-nance. But the Dodgers won't quit. We'll fight back." If so, the Dodgers would be forced to fight back with a sore beset lineup. And Manager Tommy Lasorda has given no indication that he expects any miracles. The casualty list is long and prominent:

· Kirk Gibson, the regular left fielder and most dangerous hitter on the club, was still imping with a strained left hamstring muscle. He hit .290 with 25 home runs for a team somewhat short of power. But Lasorda said: "Gibson will be in the starting lineup if he's breathing."

 John Tudor, his best left-handed pitcher, suffered spasms of the right hip and will skip his start in Game 2 on Wednesday, he'll wait until Game 3 in New York on Friday night. Tudor has received an anti-inflammation injection, but Lasorda said that "he tried throw-> winter and 228 innings in the National League this season. Fernando Valenzuela, a Dodger legend for eight summers, doesn't feel strong enough to pitch much after spending two months on the disabled list with a strained left shoulder. Lasorda had considered using him in relief or perhaps even as a surprise starter, but decided Monday to drop Valenzuela from the playoff roster. Contronted with the collapse of his pitching staff, Lasorda made some last-minute changes: Tim Beicher was moved up to start the second game instead of Game 4 in place of Tudor, who was moved back to the third game in place of Leary, who was moved back to the fourth game in place of Belcher, Also, Ricky Horton, who has been hit hard since the Dodgers acquired him in August from the Chicago White Sox, made the playoff roster as a left-handed relief pitcher. Dave Anderson, a utility infielder suffering from a back sprain, was dropped. Jose Gonza-lez, a reserve outfielder, was added as a pinch-runner and glove man for the late imings. By contrast, the Mets approached the playoffs robust in form and spirit. Helf a dozen players were nursing head colds, and Keith Hernandez was still treading hightly on his hamstring muscle, which was torn four months ago. But otherwise, they were sound.

Manager Dave Johnson said be would open against Hershiser with his customary left-handed lineup, fortified by two hot players: Gregg Jefferies, who hit .321 for the last month after joining the Mets from the minor leagues, would start at third base, and Mookie Wilson, who ended the season hitting .296 after a five-week sphurge that began in Los Angeles in August, would start in center field. To fit them into the lineup, Howard Johnson was moved from third base to shortstop, and Kevin Elster and Lenny Dykstra were moved to the bench. But Johnson said he would find work for them and for Tim Teufel, who will start at second base against left-handed pitchers. But how would the Mets cone with Orel Hershiser and his zeroes? "We have an explosive ball chub," Johnson said. "If Orel Her-Barton Streeman/The New York Tracs Gregg Jefferies, a .321 bitter for his month in the major leagues.

Orel Hershiser: "Game 1 is Game 1 - a lot will be read into it."

Banks Catch Met Fever

New York Times Service

NEW YORK - As the National League playoffs approached, Met fever spread to the financial industry.

On Monday the Manufacturers Hanover Corp. announced a New York Mets-linked Mastercard. Besides getting a credit card that sports the Met logotype, cardholders will be eligible for sweepstakes prizes that include a trip to the team's spring training camp and the use of a Shea Stadium box.

National Westminster Bank USA is also trying to capture some of the magic. ft will cut its interest rates on anto, personal and home improvement loans by a quarter of a point each time the Mets score a postseason victory, up to two percentage points. Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. may have come up with the most unusual angle of all. Its senior economist, Deborah Johnson, says she can forecast interest rates using Met pitching performance.

Since 1986, she said, the team's earned-run average has closely tracked the yield on 30-year Treasury bonds. In 1986, when the Mets gave away few runs, rates were low. Injuries and suspensions plagued the team last year, and yields soared in the spring of 1987. Now the Mets have the lowest ERA of any team in the major leagues. If they keep this up, Johnson said, interest rates could fall to 8 to 8.5 percent by year's end.

By Thomas Boswell

Washington Past Service WASHINGTON - If you analyze the Oakland-Boston playoff series like a chilly gambler, it's a walkover for the Athletics. Viewed that way, the American League championship series, which starts Wednesday in Boston, is a showdown between a barely good team that won only 89 games and a nearly great one that won 104.

But if you look at it like a baseball manager or player might - a se-quence of specific pluching matchups with heavy complasis on who's hot lately — then you can't wait for it to begin. If the Red Sox can start dent team with no psychological well at home behind Bruce Hurst (18-6) and Roger Clemens (18-12), they can pilfer a pennant.

October. Core veterans like Dwight Overall, the A's are a little better Evans, Wade Boggs, Marty Barrett, Rich Gedman and Jim Rice can tell at everything - offense, defense, pitching and base running. The Red Sox scored a few more runs in 1988, but only because they played in cozy Fenway Park. The real offensive edge lies with Oakland's sluggers, who make Fenway feel like a phone booth. The A's outhomered Boston, 13-1, in win-ning this year's season series, 9-3.

Yet all that may not be a prohibitive advantage. The Red Sox will probably have the better starting pitcher in each of the first three games, and pitching is Boston's trump card.

Hurst, Clemens and Mike Boddicker (a reborn 7-3 after arriving from Baltimore) are the equal of any three-man rotation in this post-season, and that's saying plenty.

Left-hander Hurst was 13-2 in Fenway; he's 11-5 against Oakland. His Game 1 foe will be Dave Stewart (21-12), who showed diminished fire after an 8-0 start.

Pitching Game 2 for the A's will be Storm Davis (16-7), who will face the heart of the Red Sox: Clemens, the Bob Feller of his generation but in a tired arm semi-slump. Manager Joe Morgan hasn't done much wrong, but he left Clemens in far too long in back-to-back Angust starts, and the price has been dear.

Boddicker has the curveball and changeup needed to survive against. Jose Canseco, Mark McGwire, Dave Parker, Dave Henderson and Carney Lansford. His openent in Game 3 in Oakland will be Bob Welch (17-9), who on paper looks like the A's best at the moment. If this were a 162-game series, Oakland's five-deep bullpen and its better spot starters would be important. Instead, Dennis Eckersley, the former Red Sox with 45 saves, and Lee Smith, the man who found Dick Radatz's body, will be paired off in save situations.

At a glance, Oakland's too good: Ellis Burks how much it means to atome for The Thing in 1986. • A half-dozen sluggers against a baif-dozen good batsn

National Football League victory over Dallas and exorcised a pair of gridiron demons that have haunted the Saints for years. The last-second victory was only the Saints' second triumph over Dallas in 13 meetings and its first since a 24-14 decision here on Oct. 17, 1971. ft also was only the second time in eight tries that New Orleans has won a Monday night game. which included an on-field dance by team owner Tom Benson before a Superdome crowd of 69,134 - left Andersen a bittle addled. "Elation — pure joy," said An-dersen, who jumped up, punched his fists into the sir and boogied briefly on the sideline. "I didn't believe we'd get it down there close enough. I don't know how long it was, but f think it went over the crossbar. It freaked me out. I thought we were going overtime." Audersen, a native of Denmark, is the most accurate kicker in NFL history, having made 80 percent of his field goal attempts during a seven-year career. The victory was the fourth straight for New Orleans after a season-opening loss to San Fran-cisco. Dallas dropped to 2-3. Andersen's field goal came after Roger Ruzek of Dallas had kicked a 39-yarder with 24 seconds left, tying the game at 17-17. Ruzek had missed from the same distance with 2:22 remaining, the ball hitting the left upright and bouncing back. Mel Gray returned the casuing kickoff 39 yards and Bobby Hebert, who completed 17 of 37 passes for 273 yards and two touchdowns, threw 26 yards to Brett Perriman to set up the winner by An-dersen, whose 27-yarder in the third quarter had given the Saints a 17.14 herd 249 257 40 64 5 18 17-14 lead. "That was a game, wasn't it?" said Jim Mora, the winners' coach. "It was a game of big plays, and we had the last one." Soviets: Enduring Form of Grand Masters

International Herald Tribune SEOUL -- ft has taken Soviet soccer players a long time, but finally they are grand masters of pacing a major tournament. The Olympics ended with not one marathon but two. In the same way that Italy's Gelindo Bordin judged his finish to come from behind and beat two Africans, the Soviets proved their stamina in overhauling Brazil in the soccer final.

The Soviet Union deserved the gold. Brazil deserved silver. And the rest, with the exception of the exciting Zambians, deserved what they got — the consolation of hav-ing been there.

It was a brutal schedule: Six games to win gold, crammed into 14 days, breaks body and mind. Added to that, the final and both emifinals went overtime. Yet, kicked cynically by ftalians and West Germans in the semis, both the Soviet Union and Brazil had the will, wit and strength to enthrall 73,000 spectators.

Soccer likes to remind Olympi ans (especially sponsors) of its stat-ure as the world's No. 1 crowd attraction. The total of 742,000 watching 32 matches in South Korea seems heftily beefed up, but there was no doubting the full house at the finale.

The fervor was genuine. Brazilian fans, as always, massed where the action was, but a new feature has been the voluble ranks of massed Soviet supporters — red flags flying amid Brazilian green and yellow. Show quality players that kind of attention and they'd have to be cast of stone not to respond.

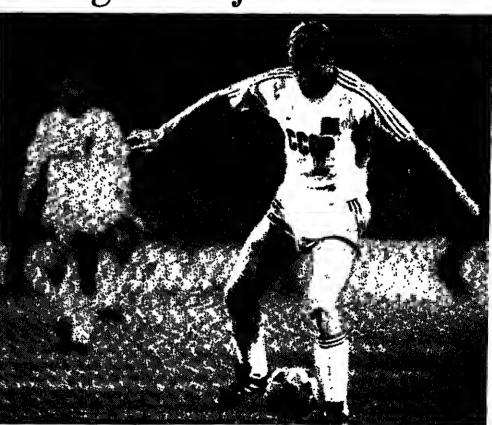

There is a pleasing evolution among the Soviets that releases hitherto regimented performers. We saw it, albeit without match-to-match isistency, at the 1986 World Cup. We saw it the European champion-ship in June, where the Soviet Union lost the final, as any team would, to the Netherlands.

A link between summer in Munich and autumn in Seoul is Alexei Mikhailichenko. He is becoming the key Soviet player: always prescnt, always involved, always Brazilians still love to feel the ball, to caress it once, twice, three times. They do not themselves know when the burst will come, so bow can defenders preempt?

They might have won the gold had they the Soviets' ability to pace a contest — or had better luck. Aside from exiled stars, the team lost Vaido and Ricardo when Benfica bought them just before the Olympics. Benfica, biting the hand that supplies, was told that Valdo is suspended indefinitely until the club explains to FIFA why it jeopardized Brazil's chances.

A little weird, this, since Argentina, the reigning world champion, mocked the finals by fielding a wretched team shorn of European exports and of players from three clubs (Rosario, San Lorenzo and River Plate) denied their release for Olympic honor.

Still, Brazil got by until it lost Geovani, the brains of the team, and his midfield aide Ademir. Both were suspended after two yellow cards.

summer of 1987 he, his wife Marcy, and nine other teachers left the school they founded in California to hring, as Padgett puts it, "American state-of-the-art special educa-tion to a continent where it didn't tainer and didn't see them again for exist." They chose Arezzo because four months. You can't imagine they wanted to be in Tuscany, "surrounded by the Renaissance," and because they found the environment they were looking for in a loth-century villa on the edge of this thriving provincial town.

The school's basic program is designed for students who have been unsuccessful in what their teachers describe as "mainstream education." This may be due to emotional or family problems, simple lack of motivation, or in some the making. The Padgetts began spending their summer vacations in Italy 12 years ago. "After two trips we felt we didn't want to go back," the American International School she recalled. "We loved it here. The only thing we missed was not having our students with us."

So they decided to bring a group from the Cascade School in Whitmore, California, to Italy for two weeks each year. "We ended our trips in Venice with a candlelight ceremony in Piazza San Marco, where we talked about being citizens of the world," said Padgett. "It may sound corny, but we could see Striscia itself is a model of late how Italy had opened horizons for Renaissance architecture, surthem, exposed them to a civilization far beyond what they experienced in northern California."

Meanwhile, the Padgetts spent at Tuscan setting. Set two weeks a year in Tuscany Although admissions are open to a hundred villas from Pisa to Siena," Padgett said. We packed our worldly goods into a 40-foot conwhat we went through to clear that, or to get the legal papers needed to live in Italy and run a school. None of us spoke fluent Italian, so Antonella [Antonella Arista Casagrande, the first Italian to join the staff] served as secretary, interpreter and guidance counselor for 11 frantic people. She was wonderful, like nearly everybody we've dealt with, so warm and hospitable. We've benefited immensely from the move, kids and staff alike."

The move to Europe was years in the making. The Padgetts began spending their community school has two sec-

Martha Graham: Phoenix of Dance

By Nan Robertson

New York Times Service T EW YORK - Martha Graham sits in an airy mirrored studio in Manhattan, immacu-lately made up, her skinned-back hair crowned by a wide floppy block different with the floppy black chiffon bow that flares out over her pointed ears and somehow looks like Cleopatra's coiffure. Moscow State University, the alma mater of the Soviet Union's leader, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, has swarded bonorary doctorates to the American economist John Kes, neth Galbraith and to the British writer Graham Greene. Galbraith was honored for "his services in the development of sciences and the humanities," the Tass agency said, Greene's doctorate is a sign of "his outstanding services in the field of literature and in the strengthening of friendly contacts with the Sovier Union," Tass said. 10
